The Boulders were Delaware "Blue Rock" which is a basalt.

Big breakers will not break this rock. It is so hard that it is not crushed for aggregate.

64 mm and 42 mm holes were drilled. The first rock was loaded with Da-mite about 9:30 am and started showing cracks about 12:30 pm and was broken into many pieces by 2:30 pm.

This rock was about 12x15x8ft tall and was loaded with Da-mite by 5pm, the next morning parts of it had fallen over.

Pieces were still so big they were drilled again to break them down further.
